* Lightroom is Adobe's digital photography program. It is also an all-around image manager that enables easy editing and management of one's images. Lightroom is a stand-alone program (no Photoshop required), but it can import and manage images in the formats (JPEG, TIFF, and so on) that Photoshop will import and export as. With Lightroom, photographers can manage and edit their images on a desktop computer or mobile device. Lightroom is easy to learn, and the media, tutorials, and learning resources available are plentiful.

2 when data was collected starting from these branches at roughly the same time. We discuss the impact of these uncertainties in Appendix \{sec:discussion\}. Since the divergence point in the SF is very close to the observed value [e.g. @2007MNRAS.378...41S], it is not surprising that the measurement with the most data is the most uncertain. Finally, we take the difference between our measures of the divergence rate and those of L15 to assess systematic uncertainties. Our measurements are reported in Table \{tab:discrim\}, and Figure \{fig:diverge\} shows them as a function of the time post star-formation as a proxy for the age of the galaxies. The main uncertainty is the one on $\alpha_{w,f}$ measured from the simulation. This is the largest contribution to the overall uncertainty, followed by the shift in fitting the SF model. The shift in fitting only affects the second measurement of the slope at high redshift, which is also the most uncertain. In Figure \{fig:discrim_dual\} we have tested the effect of the fitting criteria on $\alpha_{w,f}$. The simulation has the same SF model for all the galaxies, but we vary the criteria that select the best model (i.e. the best fit model) for each galaxy. We find that the overall agreement with the best fit value is good, but that the highest redshift galaxies seem to be systematically shifted to lower values. As expected, the fitting criteria with a very stringent 2σ criterion seem to give the best results. The criteria with higher significance shifts the median to lower values, with negligible difference among the criteria with the same σ requirement. We argue that the limitations of the fitting procedure are likely to be the real cause of the shift. Simulated galaxies are also affected by non-uniform SF (see also Figure \{fig:simulated_SF_z0\}). This is a very small effect for the low redshift simulations, but $z_{sim} \approx 2$ is sufficiently high in redshift that the SF of most simulated galaxies is not uniform. The offset (lower median) is comparable to the statistical error (standard deviation of the median). Finally, all the galaxies are affected by the drop in $S_{M_{UV}}$ in the Pages Monday, October 25, 2015 Hi there, I am so happy to announce that my new book, Return To the Island of Achillea (Achillea Island), will be available September 1st!! And here is the cover, which is really just stunning! It's available for preorder now: You can also follow me on Facebook and on Twitter: XOXO, Monie If you are interested in reading the novel, here is the blurb: The young Meniscus was a proud man who stood up for what he believed in and he didn't care what anyone else thought about him. After a decade of fending for himself on the Isle of Achillea, he thought he could forget about the past and move on. But it was impossible. Fate would have its way. Meniscus would once again have to fight for his life and to do so, he would have to remember who he was and what he was capable of. After all, a woman is as strong as the man who loves her. There's a giveaway for a \$10 Amazon Gift Card (winner's choice!) that can be entered by following the instructions at the bottom of this post.
